Directions for Halifax Harbour, taken from the printed Directions in Custom-House at Halifax.

SAMBRO island and light house is in latitude 44 deg. 30 min. N longitude 63 deg. 32 min. W.

From the westward, bring the light to bear N. E. if it bears more westerly, stretch to the southward till it bears N. E. and as much more westerly as you please, there being no shoal or ledge to the southward; then it opens on your larboard bow; give it more than a mile and a half but much more as you please.

Note—The western ledges lie from the light S W distant two miles other W S W about one league; the eastern ledges lie in a range some above water; the outermost one mile and a half from the light lying from it E N E.

When the light bears north distant about 2 miles, run N E 4 miles, north will carry you to Chedabucto Head at a proper distance clear of danger.

When a-breast of Chedabucto Head, run N. $\frac{1}{2}$ W for the south point of George's Island.

When within $\frac{1}{2}$ a mile of George's island you may enter the harbor of it in 18 fathoms, or east of it in 15.

In passing between Sandwich point and Mespher's beach run near point to shun a shoal which runs off S W from the beach.

There is also a shoal lying one mile south of Sandwich point.

Coming from the eastward, run for the light and you cannot fail Chedabucto Head as you open Halifax Harbour; the light being distant from the Head to the S W.

JANUARY hath XXXI Days.

Fine sense is not half so good as common sense.
 Nothing is more silly than an ill-timed laugh.
 The most expensive luxuries are not always the most pleasant.
 Our reputation ought to be dearer to us than life.
 Ostentation takes from the merit of any action.
 Beauty is no longer amiable than whilst virtue adorns it.

The Editor having undertaken the publication of this Almanack at a very advanced period in consequence of the sudden death of the enterprising and public spirited gentleman who had hitherto published it; is well aware that much has been omitted which might have been inserted had more time been allowed. He trusts however that his bantling will experience that indulgent consideration, which all in infancy require.—Obtaining that he will feel content, and be prompted to make such exertions as will render his future productions more useful and interesting.

Speaking of infancy furnishes him with a moral; and he will use it for the edification of those who are in the highday and morn of life. He will tell them, that that morn is most invaluable, and that its hours if wasted or mispent, will entail almost invariably, remorse and suffering upon such as have misapplied them; and that consequently they should avail themselves of every opportunity to cultivate their minds: they should form temperate, virtuous and industrious habits; and endeavour to secure a retreat for the evening of their days: when, no longer able to engage in the busy pursuits of active life, they may have no resource remaining except that which is to be derived from the contemplation of a life well spent.

FEBRUARY hath XXVIII Days.

It is much easier to debate others, than to raise oneself.

Dreams, like notorious liars, are generally false.

'The most effectual antidote against sorrow, is employment.'

'Those who give nobody a good word, deserve nobody's good word.'

What is fixed in our hearts is seldom out of our heads.

Only the good and wise can be friends; others are but companions.

Idleness has many friends, but no advocates.

Hasty resolutions are seldom fortunate.

JOWLER.

"I suppose I must save a piece for Jowler," said poor Mrs Needy, while crumb-ling her children's supper. Yes, good woman, save a piece for your dog, but when you give it him, be sure to load it with rat-bane. But stop! I think Dr. Chymical says that this will not answer the purpose, for he will throw it up the moment it begins to sicken him. Then take your sawing-piece and despatch him without ceremony. It is surprising that a poor man who can but just rub and go, and has to scratch hard to find bread for his numerous little ones, must also keep a great lazy beef-eating dog in his house. Once in a great while this animal may be of some use, but no one half pays his living.

Away with your Jowlers and Towers, your Whitefoots and Lightfoots—I had rather have one length of good fence to keep cattle out of mischief, than all the dogs in the universe."

Take good care of your sheep. This is the best direction for the preservation and management of weak lambs that can possibly be given; for the best nursing for such lambs is to keep the ewes well, either upon your best English hay or red clover, with potatoes, carrots or white beans. Such feeding will ensure you strong lambs, with plenty of milk and save all the trouble of nursing. If any one lack these means or others equally proper (for even barley, oats and corn will answer as substitutes for the potatoes, carrots or white beans, if given in small quantities, so as not to excite fever, and thereby cause ticks and the shedding of the wool) or if he neglect to use them, let him remember that such weak lambs should be treated in all respects as if they had been drowned and he would restore them to life. Apply gentle and regular warmth; give them warm milk frequently in small quantities (the milk of the sheep is best,) and if the ewe has milk sufficient for its support, you may generally raise them; but if not they commonly die. It is more work to nurse one such lamb for 24 hours, than to feed regularly one hundred sheep for the same time — Take your choice.

He that would live at peace and rest,
Must hear, and see, and say the best.

APRIL hath XXX Days.

Marriage has many pains, but celibacy has few pleasures.
 That should always be well taken that is well meant.
 Time is a friend to the mind though an enemy to the person.
 Hope and sound sleep are two of the greatest comforts of life.
 Few things are impossible to industry and skill.
 Some people are always busy, and yet do nothing.
 Confidence is a plant of slow growth in an aged bottom.

Repair your fences ; plough for your spring grains ; and for your flax, do it repeatedly. Prepare your pea ground as soon as the frost is out, by digging and raking, until it is completely pulverized. If your soil is weak, manure with live or leached ashes, or chip dung, and rake it in ; then plant your early hotspurs in double rows, 4 or 5 or even 6 inches apart, and set your peas by hand, a bout half an inch distance in the rows ; cover lightly, and press down the surface of the earth upon the rows with the hoe. Be sure to select for this crop the driest and warmest soil in your garden, especially such as is secured from the north winds, by a tight fence or wall. Select from your cellar the best of your cabbages with heads, and set in some secure place, to stand for seed ; set different kinds remote from each other, to prevent their seed mixing at the time of blossoming.
Set, at the same time, your best cabbagestumps for early salad and greens. If your ground is moist set but just below the surface ;
if dry set deep—say six inches or more.

Look to your water-courses and change their direction, to receive the benefit of the spring rains. The frequent changing of your water courses, will render your mowing even,
and prevent one part from becoming too rank

Form is good but not formality.

The vices of age are worse than those of youth.

It is not genius, but perseverance, which brings things to perfection.

Domestic comforts are the principal source of human happiness.

The spring unusually backward.

I remained in the garden until the 2^d of the month.

Began to sow oats the 6th - finished the 14th.

The weather uncommonly dry.

The wind generally easterly, cold and foggy.

April packet from England arrived the 17th. And that from New York for England the same day.

Began to plant potatoes the 14th - 17th - 20th. The Brig Canada arrived with the articles we wrote for.

24th left town for Windsor and lodging, before the other part is grown fit to cut, and thus turn to your best profit, what, if neglected, would become waste and damage.

Expose not the imperfections and failings of your neighbours. Let detraction alone, unless you would bring trouble upon yourself. "I knew it would be so," said old Tittle tattle, "and it is good enough for him." Mr. Peakaboo and I have seen and heard more than every one thinks of!" Shoh! shoh! old busybody! you had better mind your own concerns, and take heed to your own ways than thus to squint and belie your neighbours. No character is more to be detested than that of an eaves-dropper. Come let us attend to our own windows, and if they are stuffed with old rags, out with them and sell them for glass which is now cheap enough. Is your barn tight and snug? Cattle should be kept warm and comfortable; and you have heard that "a merciful man is merciful to his beast."

You may plant cucumbers to advantage the first of next month. They will often be as early as those planted in May, and generally bear better. Nurse your plants with your hoe often. Remove the dry earth, and give them fresh earth. especially if the season be dry. The best time is early in the morning. Continue to hoe and weed out your onions, and all other plants, even before the weeds appear, if possible. Hoe and bush your late peas. Plant more potatoes; sow more turnips. Continue to plant cucumbers for pickling. Top all such bush beans as are in blossom, by cutting off the top of the vines near to the blossom: they will be earlier and bear better. Thin out, and earth up all your plants. Remember that frequent hoeing is both rain and manure to your plants, especially in dry weather, if done in the morning. Plant out your cabbages, cauliflowers, &c in moist or cloudy weather, but not when the ground is wet and heavy. Thin out your beets, carrots and parsnips, and fill up the rows that may be vacant. Cut your sage, mint, &c, when they begin to flower, and spread them to dry in an airy place.

As your winter manures, from the farm-yards and hog-sties, are doubtless disposed of to the best advantage, it becomes necessary that you attend to the formation of your summer manures, to dress your lands in autumn. Let your hogs be enclosed in an open pen, near to, or in one part of your barn yard. In to this enclosure throw the scrapings of your burns, together with every vegetable sub-

Stay at home and mind your business, and leave litigation and the lawyers to those who have less sense and more money. I never view the crowds that repair to our Court-houses in the Country, and spend day after day during term time in gazing at each other; without regretting that they are not at home attending to affairs which will be more productive of pleasure and advantage. Nor do I ever observe their unfortunate horses tied to fences and famishing through want of food, but I think how many industrious and deserving men, are pining in obscurity because they do not possess the means which these spendthrifts of time are so criminally neglecting.

I recollect in one of my excursions through the country, to have observed a hale-hearted looking young man arrive every day while the Court was sitting, and after waiting nearly a couple of hours for an interview with his lawyer, would proceed to the Court house where he would remain until the rising of the Court, then return to the tavern, procure what is generally termed refreshment, and having done so, would mount his jaded horse and set off for home.

I was struck with this persons appearance, and having occasion to visit the same place about a year after; I found the him occupied in a similar manner. But he no longer exhibited the same ruddy appearance; his face was bloated, his figure emaciated, and his speech hesitating and tremulous. It appeared that the object which he had engaged in a law suit to obtain had eluded his grasp, and that he had reduced himself to wretchedness and want, by the expences which had been incurred in the pursuit.

He no longer met with the same attention at the tavern as formerly. His enquiries if the tavern-keeper did not say he should have dinner, if it obtained an answer was one abrupt and rude, as the servants turned away to attend to the commands of a new or more profitable customer.

It was after one of these rebuffs that, as I sat at my window, I observed him walk out of the house, with a countenance in which shame and hunger strove for the mastery; and meeting at the door with a wealthy gentleman, I heard him bargaining for the sale of what appeared to me to be his last ox; this animal after some difficulty, he sold at a reduced price, and was to be paid for, partly by a note, drawn in favour of a neighbour who had made him advances, and partly in goods out of the store.

With a heartless and dejected demeanour, he then bestrode his miserable steed, and again retraced his steps towards his desolate

Dry your seeds well before you put them up; and when put up, let the air have access to them. It is best to put them into drawers, or partitions of drawers, kept part way open. Gather from your gardens all winter vegetables, before the hard frosts commence, especially winter squashes; dry and house them carefully. If you do not select your seed-corn, before gathering, from the hills, do it as you are husking, selecting the fairest and ripest ears, and such as have the smallest cob, and are best filled out at the ends; though the kernels near the end should never be reserved for seed.

Now is the time to improve your next crop. By pure seed, and by selecting the earliest or the ripest, you may bring forward your succeeding crops 10, 15 or 20 days earlier, and thus enable you to improve your late sowing. Nor need the improvement stop here. By selecting your seed-corn from your field, taking the ripest ears, (at different stages of the corn, and beginning early in Sept.) and from the most thrifty stalks, you may bring forward your next crop still earlier. And moreover if you select this seed from such stalks only as produce two or more ears, you may by adhering to this practice, double or even treble your quantity of corn upon the same grounds, with only the same tillage.

Now picking winter apples, carting corn, throwing up gardens into ridges, digging potatoes, &c. keep all hands busy by day; while husking, eating baked puddings, applepies, &c. and telling a merry tale, or singing a humorous song, make a long evening speed swiftly and pleasantly away.

Industry may now relax a little from her annual toils and look around her on her comforts and enjoyments, with a brightening countenance, while the warm aspirations of gratitude issuing from her heart ascend to the Giver of all Good, from whom those comforts and enjoyments are all derived.

Securely house your carts harrows ploughs and all the implements of the summer's labours. Improve the first spell of sledding to renew your stock of wood. See that your fences be in good repair, to prevent the cattle, &c. from injuring your crops of winter grain, meadows, &c. in case of an open winter. Hogs for home use may now be killed as it is the best time for making good bacon.

Feed not only your cattle but also the houseless foodless child of want: for will the prayers of the poor call down blessings on you and yours.

Example—To find the time of highwater at Quebec May 4 1823. The time of highwater at Halifax May 1 by the Almanack is 0h 4m. To add 30m (the time set against Quebec in the Table) and you have time of high water at Quebec 0h 34m

Eclipses for 1823.

There will be Six Eclipses this year; four of the Sun, and two of the Moon, in the manner following:—

I. The first will be of the Sun, January 12th day, 4h 42m in the morning; of course invisible here.

II The second will be of the Moon, January 26th day, 0h 59m in the evening; of course invisible here.

III The third will be of the Sun, February 10th day, 10h 52m in the evening; consequently invisible to us.

IV. The fourth will be of the Sun, July 8th day, 2h 29m in the morning; of course invisible to us.

V. The fifth will be of the Moon, beginning on the 22d and ending on the 23d of July, visible and total as follows:

Beginning	0h 13m	} Appar. time even.
Middle	11h 14
End	1h 10	} Appar. time morn.
Duration	3h 52

Digits eclipsed, 18° 11½' on the Moon's Southern Limb.

VI The sixth will be of the Sun, August 6th day, 9h 41m in the morning, but invisible to us.—Moon's lat. 1° 24½' South.

Where there is no difficulty, there can be no just claim to praise, Poverty is more to be dreaded than riches are to be desired.

Time of going through the Falls,

THE Falls are level (or still water) about three hours and an half on the Flood and about two hours and an half on the ebb, which makes it passable four times in 24 hours about 10 or 15 minutes each time. — Another rule can be given, as much depends on the floods in the River John and the time of high water or full sea, which is often hastened by winds, and in proportion to the height of them.

TO TRAVELLERS.

For the information of Travellers between Windsor and Parrsborough

THE Parrsborough Packet sails regularly between Windsor and Parrsborough every week, from the 1st April to Christmas, viz.—Parrsborough on Monday, wind and weather permitting so as to Windsor on Tuesday; and will sail from thence the first high-water happens at or after eight o'clock in the morning of that day; the Packet frequently goes twice or three times a week when business requires.

The Praise of Potatoes.

Hail rare Potatoes! hot or cold all hail!
O quickly come mine appetites delight!
Whether in ovens fiery concave closed
By Bakers art, delicious thou'rt embrown'd
While rills of purple gravy from the pores
Of mighty beef improve the luscious fare.—
Whether the dame of culinary skill
Have rudely scalp'd thee o'er, and to the rage
Of warring elements consign'd thee deep
Beneath the cope of air excluding lid
In humid durance plung'd; or when with steaks
Of marbled vein, from rump of stall fed steer Disparted late—sliced in the shallow pan
I view thee kindly stew'd how joys my heart!
How flash with eager glance my longing eyes!
Or in the tedious eve when nipping frost
Reigns Potent; mid the smouldring embers roast (From subterranean store selected) those Of amplest size rotund, of native coal
Yet unberest; and if my homely board
Penurious, add but few salubrious grains
Of humble gait, I bless the cheap repast

But chiefly come at noontide hunger's call,
 When from the ebullient pot your mealy tribe
 With happiest art concoct, profusely pours ;
 And be the mass with butter's plenteous aid
 To rich consistence wrought ; nor oh withhold
 The peppers pungent power, of grateful glow
 Benificent ! lest my insatiate claim
 Ventose and watry, cause the twinging gripe
 Of cholic pang abdominal !—And here Need I relate, how when for thee I slight Thy rival roots and poignant sauces rare
 Crown'd with exotic name ; my humble choice
 Mock'd with rude insult wakes the latest spark
 Of Wittings fire—a feeble glow worm-ray
 That beams, not burns ! Nor feels my injured taste (Taste undepraved by fashions varying art).
 Alone the shaft, but person, fortune same,
 All, all invidious scann'd with sneer malign
 And scoff sarcastic—In the puddings praise
 Let others rant loquacious—I despise
 The doughty morsel for my fav'rite food
 Give me but this ye gods ! scornful I pass
 Each celebrated shop where brittle puffs
 Multangular—with custards, cakes and creams
 And lucid jellies nodding o'er the brim
 Of chrystal vase in pastry pomp combine
 To lure the sense. These: these unmov'd I pass,
 While fond I antidate POTATOES charms
 “ Nor cast one longing lingering look behind.”

such crops of flax as are usually raised, do not pay for the labour bestowed on them. This must be owing to bad management. As this is a crop the farmer must raise, if he have any regard to domestic economy, means of raising it to advantage should be duly attended to.

A good method of raising a crop of flax is as follows :

Summer-fallow a piece of ground of suitable soil, and give it six or eight ploughings and harrowings during the summer, so as to destroy all the seeds of weeds. Apply your manures during the first ploughings, unless they be composts or top-dressings ; at all events let the soil be made rich enough for hemp.

In the next spring mellow the ground again, by two or three ploughings, sow it, and sow, of well cleaned seed, at the rate of about three bushels to the acre, and harrow it in lightly. Give the ground a top-dressing, of about four bushels of fine salt to the acre, and also some lime, if the soil be suitable. Let the crop be sown about the first of May, or as soon as the ground can be effectually prepared, after vegetation has commenced. By this method of culture, and with a proper change of seed, five or six hun-dried pounds of flax, of a fine quality may be reasonably expected from the acre. It should be remembered, however that in order to obtain a good crop of flax, a farther requisite is, that the ground shall not have borne flax; for as much as seven years previous to the time it is to be sown with this crop.

This is probably about the best culture; and all deviations from it, by less expensive methods in preparing the ground, will generally, be so much to the worse. Almost every soil, that is sufficiently dry for a proper degree of fermentation, may by being well prepared, as above directed, be made to yield good crops of flax, unless the soil has too little moisture, as may be the case with dry gravelly and light sandy earths. Ground may however be pretty well prepared for a good crop, by previous hoe crops, which have been well manured, particularly if pains be taken to prevent any weeds going to seed in the Fall. Weeds are the enemy of flax; and no good crops can be raised on ground that is full of their seeds, even though it be sufficiently rich and well prepared.

Flooding of Lands.

Where swamp-land is to be cleared and it can be flooded, by making dam at the outlet, at a small expense, it is a matter of economy to attend this, as in this way its growth of wood can be completely killed. This may also be performed on lands, after they are cleared, for the purpose of killing the grass, if it be bad, in order with more ease to introduce a better kind or a better system of culture. Flooding also serves in a greater or less degree, to enrich the land; though this depends chiefly on the kind of water with which it is flooded. If it contain a rich sediment, it is good; but destitute of this it is of no use.

Colts or Colts.

To raise the best colts, the first step is, to procure the best breeding mares, then put them to the best horses, and lastly give the colts good keeping, particularly during the first winter after they are weaned. The proper time for weaning is the beginning of foddering time; and then they ought to be put in a stable by themselves, kept on good hay, and fed regularly twice a day, during winter with oats, or some other nourishing food. The next summer they ought to have good pasture.

Colts are frequently spoiled by poor keeping, at the time they require the best; and as is the case with all other young animals, during the first winter. After this they do not require better keeping than is requisite for their horses. If colts be not well kept the first winter, they are very apt to get stunted; and of this they never wholly recover. If farmers would pay more attention to keeping their colts in the best manner, as well as a due attention to the selection of breeding mares, and of horses for covering, the breed of horses in this country, much improved.

Rustic Wit.—A countryman on a trial respecting the right of a fish at the last Lancaster Assizes, was cross examined by Sergeant Cockel, among many other questions, asked the witness—'Dost thou love fish?' 'Yea,' said the poor fellow, with a look of naive simplicity, 'but I do like Cockle sauce with it.' A roar of laughter followed, in which the judge joined with his usual good humour.
